

WINDY NEWS

~MONDAY 25th AUGUST~

Special price: FREE!

Issue #3

The weather has been a little unpredictable – rather like Alex Fowler’s tennis. We are hoping for a little more sunshine now that Nicole West is here.

HAPPY HALDANES HYPE THE CROWDS

The Haldanes appeared yesterday fresh from a few weeks sun in Portugal causing a fluttering among the Under 14 groupies. Johnny has had more success than his older brother on court but Rob definitely had a better score off-court. Such is the interest in him that his fans even stayed late into the night to support him in an epic doubles match against the pink boys from Larne. Unfortunately the match didn’t go his way but there were plenty of shoulders to cry on – Becky Huinds says she’ll never wash her sweatshirt again.

SECRET ROMANCE

Ballymena Bandit David McWhirter had a poor start to the tournament when he crashed out to Graham Bell in the 16s. However he admitted that his mind wasn’t quite on the match as he has been somewhat distracted of late by a certain Under 16 seed. We don’t want to spoil their secret romance but let’s just say if you can name a large river down South you’d be on the right track. Once she gets here I’ll be fine” Mr McWhirter told us excitedly. “I can’t concentrate when she’s not here – especially when she’s down in Dublin with those Southern boys”.

CRAIG SQUASHES OPPOSITION

There is a new game afoot at Windsor – squash on the tennis court – Michael Craig has been confusing all his opposition with this tactic. Timothy Rolston and Justin Gilmore both failed to get past the slicing and chopping but Christopher Madden-McKee may be a different matter, mainly because he has asked the referee’s office to make Michael hold his racket by the handle.

FOWLED BY THE LAW

Alex Fowler had a very late night on Saturday and then a very bad day on Sunday, beaten in three sets by Lurgan’s answer to Jamie Murray (well the hair is similar). “I am a doubles expert so this is a strange occurrence for me to win at singles” Mr Law told us. “I was still seeing double” said Mr Fowler.

HOT GOSSIP

- Paddy Bell is thinking of changing sports to rowing – at least we assume that is his sudden interest in the Lagan.
- Ross Campbell goes very red when you mention an under 14 seeds name we need to investigate further – we assume it is not just a ‘minor’ affair
- Lucy McCormack has become very involved in watching the U14 boys novice. There is a certain RBAI boy with a very healthy tan who has her undivided attention – more of this later.
- Jackie Muldoon, mother to at least half the tournament – was not at the tournament yesterday sighting housework as her excuse. However on closer enquiry we discovered she was enjoying a very long lie in only breaking her sleeping for the odd phone call. This news may be a shock we realise – Jackie on the phone? Surely not.

KELLY’S NEW HEIRS

Sophie Taz is back from the USA. Fresh from playing football she is back to playing the Windsor field. Ben Kelly looks like he might be the first victim as they were spotted sharing a little lunchtime break together.

FASHION POLICE

Nicole West – “Pink is so you”

Sarah Muldoon – “You have got it right – take Ross McCarey shopping immediately”

Stuart Law – Venus Williams is actually a girl so carrying her tennis bag is not such a good look.

All dyed hair boys – Summer is over. Get those heads shaved now.

QUOTES

“I hate all those girls. I hate all of them”
~ Conor Bell ~

“It’s all so inappropriate”
~ Ben Fetherston ~

“I have officially nothing to say about anything”
~ Ross Campbell ~

“Do more than 10 people play squash in Europe?”
~ Anon ~