Issue #4

A dull and dry day today – a bit like John Turbitt’s wit. However we are still in hope of a little sunshine once Aoibhinn and Laura get on court.

MENANCING MOWLOOD CAPTURES CAMPBELL

In a late night 3 set thriller Ross Campbell was put out of the Under 18s by CI Crusader Omar Mowlood. Omar’s mighty forehand was too much for Campbell. “It was the lack of waffles that did it for me” Ross told us. “If those Snack Shack babes want to see me win they had better get their act together.” Omar said very little except “Arghhhhhh.....” mainly because he had managed to get his fingers closed in the office door. However his injuries were beautifully cared for by a certain Lurgan lovely who relished the opportunity to get a little closer to him. We also heard he had some advice from Sean O’Rourke about playing Ross.

KELLY’S SWEET SIXTEEN

Ben Kelly has finally cracked the Under 16s draw just a little too late in the season. Having put out Connor Donaldson on Monday he destroyed No 5 seed Ross McFaul in 35 minutes. The Larne loser was shocked at Mr Kelly’s performance. “What had happened to him – he was rubbish in the 16s earlier this season!” he continued. We are not sure but we think it has a lot to do with Miss Tazzioli – who has also managed to break all of her previous records and win 2 matches in a row. Tom never had that effect.

BLOND AMBITION

Mr Schelling-Tisza is knocking out the seeds in the bottom half of the draw. First Adam Donaldson and then Ross Adams have been pipped at the winning post. Paul Calvert is his next opposition and he looked very calm as he pushed aside Omar Mowlood with relative ease. On the other side of the draw reigning champion Mr Fetherston and Karl Donaldson will be battling it out after seeing off Nathan Mahaffey and Stephen Hill respectively. Natty Nathan had hardly time to enjoy his first quarter final before it was over – “I though we were still warming up” he told us “but I think I may have won a point.” Stephen Hill put up more of a fight in the last tournament of his junior career but Karl’s steady brilliance was too much. So we look forward to the battle of the blonds on Saturday. The question is will it be the ‘dark’ horse who comes through?

DOUBLES DELIGHT

There has been a wide range of doubles play over the last few days – ranging that is from brilliant to downright ridiculous – especially when it comes to clothing. We have had everything from the Larne pink parade to Northern Ireland football shirts (please note Blease and Gray, choosing a more successful team might have brought better luck!) We have also had specially printed T-shirts the most apt being Luke and Ben’s Last Chance Saloon. We think it would be fair to say they would be a lot more successful in the bar than on the court.

SANLON’S ARMY MARCHES HOME

Speaking of doubles pairings Max Thompson and Ross McCarey took advice from Chris Sanlon this year on their doubles tactics so as you can imagine they are now out of the competition (Editors note: they obviously didn’t follow the advice very well! Or pay their debts Ross...!). They are currently looking for a new leader – no volunteers have come forward except Becky and Lucy Hynds who said they would be happy to lead them anywhere. Any other applications on a postcard to the office by the end of the week. Don’t all rush to the office at once now...

BREAKING NEWS ZOOM ZOOM ZOOM

Stuart Mac may not make it for the one point tournament tomorrow as he zoomed to Canada 10 days ago and now can’t zoom back. However the event will go ahead with Stuart’s mini-me Charlie ‘Mac’ Marks in charge. Don’t forget to be at finals day to enter - last chance to win a cup this summer. Strangely everyone wants to play Alex Fowler in the first round.

FASHION POLICE

Paddy Bell: The haircut is bad but the cap is worse!

Alexandra Adams: Full marks – such a cool Ralph girl

Garret Bell – Wear your school uniform all the time – so cute

Omar Mowlood: The fluorescent top is an offence to the eyes.

Alex Fowler and Ross McCarey: American Eagle is not A&F either.
